INDIANS BEAT BASSANO
At clung last week the Blackfoot Miners handed the Bassano "Red Devils" a 6-1 defeat. The Indians showed superiority in speed throughout, although at times Bassano showed some good combination and stickhandling, they were no match for the Indians who carried the play to Bassano most of the time.

The Old Sun School Hockey team handed the Aces a severe beating last week by a score of 10-2. The first period was all even. A Murray scored for Aces and Joe Old for the Indians. In the second the boys from Old Sun began to hit their stride and made two goals one by Yellow Fly from Many Heads and the other by Wolf Leg. A Murray from Schmidt, gladdened the hearts of the whites by making a counter. The third saw the Old Sun boys having everything their own way, and if Goalie Bogie had of loosed for a goal on his job the Indians would have doubled the score. The following members of Old Sun team scored: Josey Fox; Josey Fox from Dots Many Heads; D. M. Heads; Pre-Breaker; Pre-Breaker; Pre-Breaker. Line up Old Sun: A. Young Mar Gordon; Yellow Fly and Chas M. Master; Mark Wolf Leg; Joe O. Josey Fox; Harry Ball Bear; Phil Back; Doug Many Heads; Pre-Breaker.

At a Play
Friday afternoon the Gleichen Hockey club paid Cluny a visit and played a game of 1-1 with the young lads of Cluny. The first period was a scoreless contest with no penalties. The next period was a struggle and three penalties were handed out. In the middle of the third S. McIntosh scored for Cluny in a scramble in front of the Gleichen net. Then Bobbie Sather scored for a pass out by Elliott Evans. Penalties: Cluny 2; Gleichen 1; E. Evans 1. The writer did not get the Cluny line up. Here is the Red Wing line up: A. Riddell; C. Evans and B. Sather; M. McBean, J. Reid, E. Evans, T. Egles, E. Taylor, B. Riddell, J. Robinson.

BASSANO BONSPIEL
An event of interest to all curlers in the Bow Valley district will be held at Bassano on the 8th, 9th and 10th of January, when it is expected that links from Strathmore, Gleichen, Arrowwood, Cluny, Chancellor, Humber, Milo, Brooks, Patricia, Drumheller, Medicine Hat and Calgary will be the guests of the Bassano Curling Club.

An event of special importance will be the competition called "The North Star Oil Event." This company has donated a handsome trophy and the company's agents at the various points in Bow Valley have agreed to support the event with four first prizes, which will be awarded to the winner of this event. During the bonspiel, it is proposed to have three trustees appointed for the cup and to convert it immediately thereafter into a challenge trophy open to clubs in Bow Valley and which should assist in improving the standard of curling throughout the district materially.

The agents of the company who are donating the prizes are as follows: Strathmore Hardware, Strathmore; Gleichen Motors, Gleichen; Central Garage, Louis Hong. F. Simard all of Cluny; W. S. Playfair, A. P. Pierdon and Currie & Milroy all of Bassano; Pete Deshayes and Carl Simonsen of Brooks. The two other events in the Bonspiel will be supported with prizes of the usual caliber and visitors, if last year's event is any criterion are assured of a royal welcome at Bassano.

Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Short have taken the house lately vacated by Mr. Trege.

HOCKEY CLUB SPONSORING BOXING BOUT

The Gleichen Hockey Club is putting on a boxing show on the night of January 17th, in the Community Hall. The list of those taking part in the bouts has not been completed but will be in a day or so. There will be five bouts and every one of them guaranteed to be intensely interesting. Keep your eye open for the posters for they will give all the necessary details. The posters will be out soon. Latest reports state a wrestling match will also be put on.

EXTEND PRIVILEGES BASSANO HOSPITAL

In response to repeated requests, the Board of Bassano Municipal Hospital announces the extension of hospital privileges and rates to persons living outside the boundaries of the hospital district.

These privileges and rates have, in the past, been available to residents of the district only, but now the offer is made to the country at large. People living in the towns and territory immediately adjoining the hospital district will be especially benefited by this arrangement.

The plan is a form of insurance. For a stated fee, payable at a definite time early in the year, the subscriber is entitled to receive hospital services at a very low rate for the whole of the year. If he is a married man the payment includes his wife and members of his dependent family. The capital advertisement appears in this issue.

HENS PRODUCE EGGS THAT WEIGH 2 1/2 POUNDS DOZEN

Gleichen district boasts of some splendid hen yards and heavy production for the winter months. We think the flocks of Mr. R. Cunningham, of the C.P.R. farm at Cluny, have captured the belt for egg laying during the cold weather. Mr. Cunningham brings in on an average of 20 dozen eggs every week this time of the year to the Ramsay Mercantile Ltd. and they are not ordinary eggs either. The Call scribe happened on a case last Friday which was just landed on the Ramsay counter. Twelve of these eggs weighed 2 1/2 pounds, and there were lots more of the same weight. This seems some demand for eggs in fact it exceeds the grading demands. Eggs are not supposed to be this size and the grower makes no provision for them.

Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham are poultry experts and know the game. Besides having quality stock, they know the feeding demands and also give the hens the care that warrants the production. Ramsay Mercantile have added a very fine delivery wagon to their equipment. The pulling power of this is a beautiful dappled grey pony, with Martin McBean controlling the lines. This is a valuable asset and deliveries can be made in very short order.

WINTER ARRIVED IN REAL EARNEST SATURDAY

Real winter weather set in Saturday morning with a first class blizzard. However, not much snow fell but since then until early Tuesday morning it was so cold that almost every body had to stoke up. Saturday evening about 8.30 the Greyhound snow plow arrived from Calgary and reported that there was no much snow on the road, but they had reports that there were bad drifts cast and proceeded on their way. The next day Sunday, the government snow plow arrived from Calgary. It did not go on east but turned around and headed back for the city.

The prices for admission to the Gunners Hockey games have been revised and are as follows: Adults 10c; students 5c; children 10c. The attendance at the games have not been very large this winter and it is thought that a change in the admission prices might help to bring out the fans. The team looks pretty good now and they need all the encouragement they can get.

LOCAL MASONS INSTALL OFFICERS FOR ENSUING YEAR

The Gleichen Lodge No. 36, G.R.A., A.F. & A.M., held its installation recently and the officers elected for the year 1936 are the following:

PREDICT MORE MONEY FOR FARMERS IN 1936

Canadian farmers will probably have more money to spend during 1936 than was the case in 1935. Increased prices for most of the farm products, with the volume of the 1935 crop about equal to that of 1934, has placed the farmer in this improved position. In addition, the gradual expansion of industrial activity and moderate improvement in employment are contributing factors to an anticipated upturn in demand from within Canada. These facts are pointed out in the "Agricultural Situation and Outlook" to be issued shortly by the Dominion Department of Agriculture and Trade and Commerce.

"The Outlook" in surveying the Canadian market for farm products points to the conditions existing in various other Canadian industries, such as mining, lumbering, construction and the iron and steel industry. Changes in the activity of these industries has a very real effect on the demand for farm products. The interrelation of agriculture and industry in Canada makes it necessary for farmers, as well as business men, to understand the situation in other fields of activity.

The Canadian export market for farm products is dominated by Great Britain and the United States. From Great Britain comes encouraging reports of business recovery, which will likely be reflected in the volume and prices of imports, especially of farm products. Canada stands in a good position to share in any trade revival. The United States also has been showing considerable improvement in the general situation over that of 1934. Increased imports of animal products and vegetable food products during 1935 was of substantial importance to Canadian farmers and it would seem likely that this trade may be maintained, if not improved, during 1936. One of the disturbing factors to international trade during the depression has been the uncertainty regarding currency exchange. During 1935 there was a marked degree of stability between the currencies of the United States, Great Britain and Canada, which, while not solving the problem, has led to a restoration of confidence. There are various factors in several countries that tend to prevent for the time being at least a greater international trade in agriculture, for copies should be made to the Publicity and Extension Branch Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Copies of this publication will be available to farmers and others interested on or about the 15th of January. Applicants for copies should be made to the Publicity and Extension Branch Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Morality And Democracy

A Toronto newspaper editor, addressing a club in that city recently made an urgent plea for a return to what he termed the "Old System of Morality," basing his plea on the declaration that if democracy and its by-products, freedom of the press, freedom of thought and freedom of action are to survive, reversion to former standards of morality is essential.

The editorial writer asserted that "democracy never was in greater danger than it is to-day, even though it may not be threatened by emperors or tyrants, except those of our own creation. The threat is the ultimate moral and physical collapse of democracy's constituent parts."

While perhaps some of the illustrations used by this editor were somewhat overdrawn, nevertheless the premises on which he based his argument are sound and the warning and the accompanying plea for rehabilitation of some of the virtues which dominated family life and were regarded as an essential in the conduct of trade and commerce in the days of our parents and grandparents are worthy of consideration and should be heeded.

The pendulum of morality and conduct has swung through a wide arc since those days when it was regarded a sin to read a newspaper on the Sabbath day, when children were universally taught and expected to reverence their elders and when those elders themselves were largely motivated by simple but inspired rules in the conduct of their homes, their farms or their businesses and in their relations with their neighbors.

Perhaps the pendulum has swung too far in the direction of lack of restraint and elimination of self-governance, for it is a sine qua non that self-governance is a necessity before one can govern others with success or inspire respect. The loosening of moral standards of the individual is bound to have an adverse effect on the life of the community and the nation and eventually to determine the communal and national welfare.

Few perhaps are prepared to argue that we should return to the prohibitions and restrictions of the mid-Victorian era in their entirety but there is reasonable ground for argument that reversion to some of the virtues which dominated the actions of the period would not only not be amiss but would tend to strengthen a weakening democracy.

Who would deny, for instance, that a more extensive practice of thrift, hard work, reverence for authority, respect for law and order and simple pleasures, would tend in the direction of building up a vigorous, self-reliant nation, or that a nation of individuals, thus morally equipped, is best able to hold its own in the conflicts for supremacy and in the battle for maintenance?

The value of these virtues in the individual in determining the national advancement and welfare is well illustrated in the achievements of the Romans in the century immediately preceding the birth of Christ. During that period the Roman Empire reached the zenith of its brilliant career. It was the era of its most illustrious writers, agriculturists, historians, law makers, commanders and statesmen, yet it was a period in which the simple virtues dominated the upbringing of the youth and the lives of the people.

Testimony to that effect is afforded in a bulletin recently published by one of the grain companies in which the following quotations are found:

"The education of the Roman boys and girls of the period was designed to fit them for farm life. Girls were taught to manage a home, to spin and weave; boys to plow, sow, reap, and to manage the business affairs of the farm, and, as well, to know how to conduct the various offices of state, including the very highest for farmers above all others, were chosen to fill these exalted positions."

"The character of the young people was moulded so as to develop a respect for parental authority and for law and order. They were taught to be modest in speech, discreet in behaviour, and as well to be thrifty and self-reliant."

The practice of these simple and fundamental virtues does not necessarily involve abandonment of the fruits of scientific achievement which have so bountifully enriched present day life, but it does mean that we will take advantage of them as we can afford them without mortgaging the future to the hit.

There are evidences of a desire on the part of our governments to return to the sound policy of balancing their budgets, in other words to revert to the "pay as you go" plan. Their success in achieving this laudable ambition will largely be determined by the attitude of the people while have placed these governments in authority, and the attitude of the people will be governed by their own views and practices in their private and business lives.

The fact that this tendency on the part of our governments exists is a healthy sign, for governments are supposed to have their ear to the ground and to know what the people want. Maybe the pendulum has already started to swing back.

Reconstruction Policy

Parliament Will Be Asked To Endorse Proposal

Parliament will be asked at the coming session to endorse a proposal for a widely-embracing national reconstruction policy, including building homes, slum clearance, land and settlement and reforestation. Loans under the scheme would be made available at low interest rates while the creation of greater opportunity for the youth of Canada would be a major objective.

Sponsor of the proposal will be Thomas L. Church (Cons., Toronto-Broadview), who will seek approval of a resolution in the following terms:

1. That in the opinion of this house, Canada should immediately adopt a comprehensive national housing, building, reconstruction, renovation, slum clearance, land settlement and reforestation policy adapted to its circumstances, and also embracing as one of its main features a national policy for youth in relation to education and industry and employment, so as to get people off the idle and back to remunerative employment.

2. And further, this house is also of the opinion that in any such national reconstruction policy a lower rate structure for bank, mortgage and insurance loans is an immediate necessity. Such a reconstruction policy to also embrace protection for industrial workers in urban and suburban areas from forfeiture on the same principle as farmers and fishermen are now afforded by existing legislation.

Quakes Are Annoying

Northern Ontario Settlers Are Now Becoming Jittery

This business of earthquake shocks up along the Transcanadian and Northern Ontario railway has gone far past the thrill and novelty stage. If they don't soon stop, say harassed settlers, the government will have to do something about it.

The quakes around Diver station, 30 miles north of North Bay, are pestered, nervous and plain fed up. The latest complaint came from F. E. Sains, who may be regarded as official spokesman for settlers in the Diver area.

Settler Sains snowed two miles from his cabin to the nearest telephone line and let it be known the least the federal authorities can do is start an investigation. After all, there must be some cause for these rattlings and shakings.

Mr. Sains said tremors have been felt ever since last May, and the big 'quake of Nov. 1, with its epicentre near Diver, left its trail of recurrent rumblings and quivers.

"They last from a few seconds to more than a minute," he has come to the rate of 15 or 20 in a single day," said Mr. Sains. "I think the ground in which my cabin is built must be hollow, for the cabin seems to lift right up in the air when the quakes come. And from the sound of the rumbling, I believe the ground on each side is hollow too."

Canada Must Support League

Canada's proper future is tied up with the British Commonwealth of Nations and the League of Nations and it is to this country's advantage to support these groups wholeheartedly, declared Sir Robert Falconer, president of the League of Nations Society in Canada, in an address before the Border Cities branch at Windsor, Ont.

Economic Council

Premier Of Nova Scotia Appoints Prominent Men Of The Province

Representatives of Nova Scotia's mining, lumbering, fishing, agricultural and manufacturing industries were named along with education and labor authorities to a newly-created economic council by Premier Angus L. Macdonald.

Nine prominent Nova Scotians, headed by Dr. A. Stanley MacKenzie, former president of Dalhousie University, who will be chairman of the commission, had assured the premier they were "quite ready to render their assistance in every possible way."

The council was instituted on the recommendation of the Jones commission which investigated the economic ills of this province a year ago and reported "we believe that the first need is the establishment of an economic council."

The following were named as members of the council:

Dr. A. S. MacKenzie, a noted Canadian scientist, former president of Dalhousie University and senior member of the national research council of Canada, chairman;
Dr. A. B. Balcom, professor of economics, Acadia University, Wolfville—representing education;

F. W. Gray, assistant general manager of the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation, associated with the Nova Scotia steel and coal industry in various executive capacities since 1906—representing mining;

C. G. Hawkins, of Millford Station, Kings county, prominent Nova Scotia lumberman;

Neil McAulay, president of the plant council of the Sydney steel plant—representing labor;

Dr. Donald F. Macdonald, associate professor of geology at St. Francis Xavier University, Antigonish, who has had wide practical experience as a geological expert since 1903 when he graduated from George Washington University;

O. F. MacKenzie, president of Halifax Fisheries and established that exporting firm in 1914 after he had had practical experience as a fisherman—representing fishing;

Frank Stanfield, Truro, president of Stanfield Limited—representing manufacturing;

F. Waldo Walsh, director of marketing for the Nova Scotia department of agriculture—representing agriculture.

The council will probably meet early in the new year. One of its first duties will be to appoint a permanent secretary. All appointments are effective immediately.

New Engine For 'Plane

Famous Freightliner Will Take To Air Again Soon

One of Canada's largest 'planes, the famous Junkers JU-52 freighter, brought to this country in 1932 by Canadian Airways, will take to the airways again soon and prairie residents will get their first chance to see it.

The huge ship, built to carry tons of freight and with a cabin so large a man can walk up and down it without bending his head, only made a few flights in northern Manitoba when it became a "white elephant of the air." The motor gave out and the Canadian aeronautics branch refused to license the ship even if repair parts were obtained caused Canadian Airways to put it in storage. The government air experts said the motor was not big enough for such a huge 'plane.

But the British air ministry just recently released one of its proved 600-horsepower Rolls Royce air motors and Canadian Airways purchased it. One-third greater in power than the original motor, the Rolls Royce will be fitted to the Junkers and the 'plane again put in operation. Present plans are to fly it over the prairies in tests before taking it north again for the heavy freight work there.

World's Oldest Men

Have Just Died Within Short Time Of Each Other

The world's oldest men have just died almost at the same time. At Mts. Krasn, near Belgrade, Yugoslavia, a man named Trajko Stankovitch has died at the age of 131. He had been married for 50 years, and enjoyed good health almost to the end of his life. His wife who survives him, is still well and sturdy. All the peasants for miles around are mourning for the old man, for he was an excellent story-teller and a mine of historical reminiscences. Besides this, they regret that his one ambition—to ride in a motor-car before he died—was unfulfilled. Meanwhile the oldest man in Durban, Natal, has died at the age of 108. He was Krammchund, an Indian market gardener. He came to Durban from India in 1874.

Identification Cards

Use Throughout Canada Is Recommended By Montreal Citizen

Use of identification cards for citizens throughout Canada, was recommended by Brig.-Gen. E. de Panet, president of Montreal unemployed relief commission.

Such a scheme, he told members of the City Improvement League, would aid greatly in such problems as registering unemployed, preventing impersonation at polling booths and would also serve in the nature of a prospect within the country.

Almost A Tragedy

They had been married only a month and he had left for a few minutes while she prepared a salad in the kitchen.

Suddenly a piercing scream rang out, and he rushed to the kitchen prepared to face he knew not what.

"Whatever is the matter, darling?" he panted.

"It's a—a caterpillar!" she said, with an effort. "Oh, Herbert, what if I had been in the house alone!"

Still a car will keep running despite new models that make it look funny.

New Discovery Important

Chemical Prevents Ice Forming On Aeroplane Wings

A chemical method of preventing the formation of ice on aeroplane wings has been discovered by research engineers of the Royal Air Force, it was announced by Sir Philip Sassoon, parliamentary under-secretary to the air ministry.

It is generally believed the loss of the Belgian air liner December 10 near Tattersfield, Kent, which took 11 persons to their death, was caused by the accumulation of ice on the plane's wings.

Sir Philip said the new discovery is being carefully developed and is expected to make for greater safety in all kinds of flying weather.

"What do you make a week?" asked the judge of an Italian organ grinder.

"Twenty dollars, sure."

"What, twenty dollars for grinding an organ?"

New Dwellings Needed

Many Homes Needed in Canada To House Low Wage Earners

The board of control at Ottawa had under consideration a report from a sub-committee of the National Construction Council of Canada saying at least 2,000 new dwellings are needed to house low-wage earners and relief tenants.

The report said at least 576 existing occupied dwelling units might be demolished to make room for new and more satisfactory homes.

It added rehabilitation of 1,399 houses should be launched and that 5,625 families are occupying 3,529 dwellings, causing serious overcrowding.

A Simple Preventive

Of eight victims of diphtheria in Toronto last year, only one had been toxoided. Among more than 100,000 immunized since 1929, this is the only case where diphtheria has proven fatal, and these are said to be circumstances which explain this one. Is there any other deadly disease where a simple preventive measure is so sure a guarantee against a fatal attack?—Toronto Star.

Eighty per cent of all adults are immune to infantile paralysis, according to estimates.

FLEMING'S FOLLY

—BY—
LAWRENCE A. KEATING

CHAPTER III.—Continued

A few drops from a new bottle of whiskey brought her slowly around. Sheriff Stephen stood with Deputy Hines and the prisoner, his expression grim. Doc Slater watched Townsend, who still lay unconscious. "Sheriff, here's the bullet. It was a fender shot at close range. Would have killed him sure, only it deflected from his belt buckle and used up some of the force. Got to leave him here a couple of hours, then move him to a bedroom."

"There's one right handy on this floor, Doc," Gaines offered.

"All right, I'll go now. Move the whole lounge."

Eager hands grasped it and slowly wheeled the leather affair down a short corridor. Gaines led the way. When everything was arranged to the doctor's satisfaction he shook them from the room.

Link walked slowly back to the lobby. Stephen beckoned to him with a lean forefinger and a nod. Helen Hamilton sat with her face covered by both hands, weeping softly. Buzz had the dazed look of a drunk suddenly sobered by the awful consequences of his act.

"Meant that slug for you, eh, Link?"

He hesitated. To admit this might mean a charge of attempted murder against young Hamilton. Hastily he sought some possible explanation, and shook his head. "Oh, I guess it was just an accident, Sheriff."

"No, it wasn't an accident," said the hulk of a man from the side. "Any fool could tell you we have him. Townsend stepped in 'an' took the slug, trying to get Hamilton's gun. You got a generous streak in you, Link, the sheriff said not quite so harshly, 'but I'll get Townsend's story no yores ain't gonna hold water, savvy? Doc, is the boy going to live?'"

Slater was replacing the instruments in his bag. "If he does it won't be Hamilton's fault. I'm going to camp right here all night and tend Buster."

"The Boone County lawman grunted. With a yank at Buzz's manacles he started his prisoner out and told Helen looked up, started to rise to go to him, but was restrained by Roper Kilgo. The next moment Stephen and Buzz were gone.

For a moment Link Fleming was not sure what he wanted to do. As he stood building a brown-paper cigarette with fingers that trembled, his eyes met those of the girl. Link walked slowly toward her, trying to summon some comforting thing to say.

"It was Kilgo who spoke first. 'Yuh shouldn't have batted him. Link, I saw there'd be trouble right off. Buzz, he wasn't feeling right, an'—"

"He wasn't feeling right because he had too much liquor!" Helen interposed with horror and accusation blended in her voice. "Who has been drinking with? Who?" she insisted.

"Wall—reckon him'n Jackpot Mell—"

Her angry gesture stopped him. Kilgo stared down at his boots. "Goah, I'm shore sorry this happened. Anyhow, it's lucky you got so early. You can depend on. Me bein' kind of like you—I mean, since we have a sort of understandin', and I waited two years for yuh to come back, yuh I guess it's up to me to help you out now. Maybe we better start for the spread, eh?"

The girl drew away the hand he held. In her manner there was coldness unmistakable, freezing to anyone but the obstinate Kilgo. "Jackpot Mell is one of your closest friends. You claim to be a friend to Buzz and me. You convinced Buzz that it would be foolhardy to go into any irrigation scheme, yet he wrote me last week that you wanted to buy our nine hundred acres. If it is wasteland, and you don't believe in irrigation, how is that?"

"I—I think you are responsible, some way, for this thing happening," she continued in a voice she tried hard to make steady. "It's very plain, Mr. Kilgo, that you have entirely too much influence over Buzz. You could have stopped him just now but you were silent."

"Thank you," she summed up firmly. "I won't be necessary for you to see me home. Good-bye."

During her speech the Box 50

owner simply looked at her in amazement, his mouth opening and closing stupidly. Roper fumed as she ended, and his jaw set with a click. "So Fleming's been fillin' yuh with a pack o' lies about me gettin' Buzz drunk?"

"We haven't had time to discuss you or anyone else!" Link stated. The other straightened aggressively. "No, but yuh been writin' love letters when yuh know dang well Helen and me are—"

She stepped between the stern-faced men. "There is no cause for assuming that, Mr. Kilgo. Please go back up for coffee. And another thing," he snapped angrily. "I don't care to interfere with my private affairs, savvy?"

He hesitated as if debating whether to amplify this. His meaning was clear, however—that Link had come between him and Helen Hamilton. Finally, with a growl, Roper stamped to the lobby door and was gone outside.

For the first time Fleming became aware that darkness was fast descending as the November afternoon waned into night. Far down the street but visible from where he stood at the lobby window, a knot of curious citizens loitered outside the small adobe jail. They were discussing, no doubt, the incarceration of Buzz Hamilton.

Link went back to the bedroom and talked a moment in low tones to Doc Slater. He then proceeded to give Buster Townsend every care, and to remain at his patient's side all during the night. He would send word in the morning how Buster was; or Link would, if possible, come to see his faithful sister.

Returning to the lobby, he stood before Helen, his hat turning slowly between his fingers. "I'd sure like to take you home if you don't mind. But if you'd rather—well, maybe you'd like to be alone, some day." She doubted her eyes with a mite of handkerchief and looking up at him, managed a brave, wan smile. "Thank you, Link. I'd be glad if you would go with me. Shall we start now?"

CHAPTER IV.

The ride to the Triple H Ranch was uneventful. Driving the buckboard Buzz had brought to town for his sister's baggage, Fleming made little effort at conversation. He felt that Helen Hamilton preferred to be left to her thoughts. Much had happened to mar the happiness of her homecoming. Almost before she had had an opportunity to greet her brother he became the sheriff's prisoner for attempting to kill a man. If Buster Townsend succumbed to his wound, Buzz would have succeeded, although his fury had been directed at Fleming.

Link turned the equipage over to a waddle who appeared, and made ready to mount his buckskin pony, which had been jogging behind the buckboard. They stood in a shaft of yellow light from one of the front windows of the ranch house. Some- what awkwardly, he shook hands with the girl and turned to mount.

But she stayed him with a thoughtful question. "You are really serious about building that irrigation dam, aren't you?" I mean, you're to water your own spread whether other ranchers go in with you or not?"

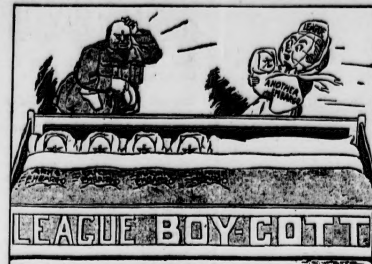

He nodded soberly. "Maybe everyone else is right on this, and I'm plumb foolish. But I believe in it, Helen. I've learned as much about irrigation as a layman can. Why, I know I'll work."

He grew reflective. "I was sure surprised when Skak Torney said irrigation wouldn't pay here in the county. Skak doesn't really believe that, I'm positive. He's been almost as eager for it as I have. Spent a lot of time makin' those blueprints, and stayin' sober enough to talk about it. Yesterday he was for it. To-day he reverses himself. Some- body talked to Torney, bought him off. Or maybe threatened him. He shook his head. "Don't know who did it or how, but it sure worked. He seems to have disappeared."

The girl said nothing for a moment as she gazed across the range bathed in early evening moonlight toward the bulk of the Captain Mountains. "Buzz didn't favor irrigation, ever, did he?"

"Oh, first time I mentioned it to him he was just stand-offish. But right after that he got dead set against it. Why?"

She shook her head. "Who has

Buzz kept company with lately? Does he spend much time with—Roper Kilgo?"

Fleming moistened the edge of his cigarette paper and carefully shaped the smoke. "Course, Roper's about the most important cattlemen around. He's practically boss here. I reckon it's natural for Buzz to kind of snatch up the pearls o' wisdom Kilgo drops about rangin' cows and other important things."

The irony in his tone did not deceive her. On sudden impulse she touched his forearm. "Link, you— you think they'd do something to Buzz for this shooting? Like puttin' him in prison?"

In Former Days

Comment on Manners and Fashions Of Yesterday

It may comfort the younger generation to know that scandalized comment on manners and fashions is not confined to the present. Grandmother had to put up with it, too.

An engaged girl in 1881 provoked an editorial in a Toronto newspaper, when she kissed her beau in public, and "looseness in dress" was the subject of an editorial protest in 1885, it was shown by clippings in an old scrapbook covering the period 1860-1890, which were the subject of an informal talk by J. Alex. Edmiston, Montreal lawyer, to a women's club. So untrustworthy had men become in 1884—it appeared from an English clipping—that there was a movement on foot to allow women to be accountants.

Advertisements of the period indicated that the husband of 1885 was likely to come home to find his wife had bought him an "American steel" collar or collars and cuffs made of paper.

Change Stamp Design

Reported Attempt Made To Alter Princess Elizabeth Stamp

The post office department reported attempts were being made to forge a tear on the "Princess Elizabeth" stamp issued last spring in connection with the king's jubilee.

The stamp, known as the "weeping princess" because of a small imperfection appearing in some specimens below the princess' right eye and resembling a tear, became a rarity among philatelists.

Judge: "Speeding, eh?" How many times have you been before me?"

Speeder: "Never, your honor, I've tried to pass you on the road once or twice, but my bus will do only 55."

In poker, the king is the second highest card, but in Italy the Duce takes the king.

Famous Wigmaker Dead

Willie Clarkson Was Interesting Figure in London's Life

The death of Willie Clarkson removes one of the most interesting figures in London's life. Eminent as a wig maker and famous as an impersonator and as an originator of costumes, he became at the end of his life a social personality who was never absent from first nights and was in demand at the most important social functions of the year.

He deliberately dressed to make himself a character, and used to allow his hair and beard to grow in fantastic shapes. Whenever he went he selected for himself some appropriate accoutrement which set off his handsome features and imposing manner.

"Predictions by Clarkson" has appeared on the programs of most of the productions of note during the past half century, and his uniforms—50,000 of them, from William the Conqueror's time onward, were part of his stock have been used for military tournaments and fancy dress balls.

Young Clarkson had a flair for wig-making and fashioned them for stars of the stage, kings and crooks as well. The wigs were made at the back of his shop in Wardour street.

Above the shop he had his home. He was unmarried. His flat is crowded with souvenirs given by the world's theatre and opera stars.

Sarah Bernhardt was a special friend of his, and he took particular pride in the wig which she played Magdalen and had to throw her hair over the feet of the actor playing the part of the Saviour. The wig was of natural hair, 66 inches long!

Another large-sized job was the transformation of a lioness into a lion. A circus manager had announced the appearance of "The Fiercest Lion in the World" before he had seen the animal. Alas! It turned out to be a sleek lioness. But by the next afternoon Mr. Clarkson had fitted out the lioness with a magnificent mane mounted on elastic, and thousands were fooled.

Congress Of Hunters

Meeting To Be Held in Washington At Early Date

A continental congress of hunters, fishermen and others interested in North America's game resources—a meeting with more than 1,000 possible delegates—was called by President Roosevelt to meet at Washington at an early date. Canada and Mexico probably will be asked to send representatives.

In calling the wild life conservation conference, the president followed the recommendation of J. N. "Ding" Darling, who recently resigned as chief of the biological survey bureau. The noted cartoonist and conservationist, in submitting his resignation, urged such a conference to create a federation of all wild life agencies with sufficient power to obtain protective legislation.

Darling said the conference would cover everything from big game animals, such as deer, bear and antelope down to the smallest fish and fowl. Among the collateral subjects to be considered, the president said, are stream pollution control and better utilization of impounded waters, reservation lands, national parks and eroded lands. Waterpower, he said, would be only indirectly involved.

Teaching English in Berlin

Employees Being Prepared To Handle Crowds At Olympic Games

A school for English has been opened in one of the best known cabarets in the West End of Berlin. Germany. Waiters, page boys and bar maids come to this cabaret in the afternoon. Across the front of the bar a blackboard has been put up and a teacher stands before it.

The pupils sit around little tables at which, a few hours later, guests sip wines. They repeat in chorus the English phrases: "Good evening, sir." "What would you like to drink?" "Here is your change, sir." "Auf Wiedersehen—Goodbye."

The staff of forty cabarets, bars and restaurants in Berlin are joining in the special English courses as part of the preparations for the Olympic games next year.

Business Conditions

A review of business conditions in the Dominion during the first ten months of 1935 indicates that Canada's economic recovery drive is favourably progressing.

Field studies of harvesting potatoes on 254 farms showed that diggers injured 10 per cent. of the potatoes.

Cats cannot see in absolute darkness. Their vision is unusually acute in the dusk, however.

Little Helps For This Week

Man's goings are of the Lord; how then can a man understand his own way. Proverbs 20:24.

Be quiet, why this anxious heed About things they tangled ways? God knows, them all, He giveth grace. And He allows delays.

We complain of the slow dull life we are forced to lead, of our humble sphere of action, our low position in the scale of society, of our having no room to make ourselves known, of our wasted energies and our years of penitence. So do we say we have no Father who is directing our life, so do we say that God has forgotten us, boldly judge what life is best for us, and by our complaining do we lose the use and profit of the quiet years. O men of little faith! Because you are not yet sent out to your labor do you think God has ceased to remember you? Because you are forced to be outwardly active do you think you also in your years of quiet, may not be about your Father's business? It is a period given us in which to mature ourselves for the work God will give us to do.

Infant Prodigy

Four-Year-Old Chicago Boy Is Expert Violinist

A four-year-old boy who has been raised as a nudist romped into the Chicago Musical College for his daily violin lesson undisturbed by his lack of clothes or the fact that his teachers have acclaimed him a genius. The child, David A. Davis, wore only a loin cloth under the cape his mother wrapped around him before he left home. He threw off the cape, raised a small violin to his chin and played "March in D" by Bach perfectly.

Max Fischel, David's instructor, said the child took his first lesson when he was two years and eight months old. He was four last October.

The Newest Chain Store

Goods Kept Behind Glass And Released By Key

Marketing, Toronto, says Keadoodle is the name of a new type of chain store where the customer does all her buying with a key presented upon entering. Merchandise in packages is displayed behind glass-enclosed shelves the doors of which are opened by the key. Process of unlocking releases the desired article upon a conveyor belt. When purchase is completed, customer goes to the cashier's cage. The bill is paid and the cashier releases the conveyor belt which delivers the goods to the customer.

Helping Mothers to Cut Down On Family's Colds

Unique Formula For Nose and Throat Helps to Prevent Colds—And to Throw Off Head Colds at the Start. SOON CLEARS "STUFFY HEAD"

Mothers are often worried about their families' colds that have their griping for it in the unique aid for preventing colds, Vicks Vapo-rinol.

Especially designed for nose and upper throat, where most colds start, Vicks Vapo-rinol soothes and relieves the irritation provided by Nature—in the nose—to prevent colds, and to throw off head colds in the early stages. Used in time—at the first sniffle, sneeze or nasal irritation—just a few drops on each nostril—Vicks Vapo-rinol helps to avoid many colds.

Where irritation has led to a clogged-up nose (a stuffy head cold or nasal catarrh) Vicks Vapo-rinol soothes the nasal passages—reduces swollen membranes—clears draining mucus—brings comforting relief.

A Practical Guide for Mothers. Each year, more and more families are being helped to fewer colds, shorter colds and sicker kids by following Vicks Vapo-rinol's directions. Vicks Vapo-rinol has been clinically tested by practicing physicians, and further proved in everyday home use throughout the country. Full details of the Plan come in each package of Vicks Vapo-rinol.

Town & District

Born, Jan 2nd, to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brown, a son.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. A. Wilson and Bob Brown spent New Year's day in Calgary visiting friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Lyons of Calgary were visitors to Gleichen during the holiday. Their many friends were pleased to see them.

Walter Bogette and Stan Young of Vancouver have been spending the past couple of weeks in town visiting their parents and renewing acquaintances. They came by car which went on to Regina. On the journey here they drove night and day, all taking turns at the wheel.

Little Teresa Fleury wishes to thank all those who voted for her in the recent doll contest and helped her to win a doll.

Dr. W. H. Hill, medical health officer, Calgary, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Black. Dr. Hill and Mr. Black worked together in the Gleichen branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce in 1912.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Black and family of Calgary, spent Christmas in Gleichen with his brother Jas. Black. During the day Herb was also entertained at the Tom and Jerry party. A grand time was had.

The ladies of Meadowbrook will entertain to a New Year ball on Friday, February 28th.

Mrs. Crawford of Craigmyle spent a few days in Gleichen visiting her daughter Mrs. Al Wilson.

W. D. Treago has closed up his Gleichen home and has moved his household effects to his Mossleigh farm.

Mr. and Mrs. David McBean gave a splendid holiday party at their farm home last week. Quite a number of Gleichen folk were present and report having had a grand time.

A certain party from Calgary visiting here during the holiday season bought some oysters from Ramsay Mercantile Ltd. Arriving back in the city they proceeded to enjoy the oysters when to their great surprise they found a pearl! Just how valuable the gem is we have not yet heard.

Rev. Joseph Lee and son Brian, and Miss Charlotte Burne of Strome, Alta., spent part of the holiday season here visiting relatives and friends in the district.

Max Yates returned last week to the University at Edmonton after spending a short holiday with relatives. Max is developing a good singing voice.

Pete Downey has returned to Edmonton and the University after spending a grand holiday in town. Pete is another Gleichen boy who is rapidly developing into a good singer.

Miss Kathleen Beach spent the holiday season with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Beach. She returned to the University last week.

Gerald Yates who is in the picture show business was another visitor to town during the holiday season.

A delightful dance was given in the Shamrock school last Friday evening. Fine reports received all who attended had a most joyous time.

The town police have received orders to exterminate all dogs that have not got tags on for the 1935 and 1936 season. The town receives between $20 and $30 a year in dog taxes. We are of the opinion that a taxpayer should be allowed to have a dog without being taxed for the privilege. But if a taxpayer has two dogs or more then each him good for the extra dog.

The annual New Year's Eve dance staged by the 22nd Battery was one of the most successful social affairs that they have ever put on. Possibly the people have got tired of running a round with long faces and talking hard times but on New Year's eve this was cast aside and all cares forgotten for all joined in the dance with gusto. As the hours wore on the crowd became happier and at midnight they were having barrels of fun with the noise makers. So great was the uproar it was with difficulty that the officials could make announcements to properly bring in the year 1936. Many beautiful prizes were given away to the dancers during the evening.

GUNNERS DEFEAT SPARTANS BY 6-2 SCORE

The Vulcan hockey team will play the Gunners on Gleichen ice Friday night.

The Spartans have come and gone, and like the Arabs "stole away in the night" with the small end of a 6-2 score. The Spartans were no match for the Gunners as they dominated the game, at will and kept the play on Spartan territory most of the time. In the third the Spartans pressed hard sending every man up and at times gave Wilson plenty to do to save his net. Gleichen made three goals in the first. W. Lester from Bob Brown after the goalie had saved three hot shots in quick succession. Schnapp made an individual rush from centre ice and scored. E. Lester from Bob Brown when they had only one man to beat. In the second Bob Brown counted Gleichen's fourth goal in a scramble; W. Lester next scored from B. Brown's pass. Tom Brown picked up a penalty about its time and the Spartans sent in a power play. Mr. Pitt got a pass from somebody and put the little black devil in the Gleichen net for the Spartans first counter. The third period saw the Spartans shake the Gleichen net for the second and last counter by Goodrich who made an end to end rush. The last goal was made by Bob Brown when all the Spartans were inside the Gleichen blue line. Bob got hold of the puck and made a wild dash for the far end with the entire Spartan team after him, they could not over haul him so he poked the puck in the net without being disturbed. Bob lost a couple of more chances to duplicate this feat when he broke away and nobody but the goalie to beat but he missed the net or hit the goalie.

NOTICE

Anyone who has not obtained his 1935-1936 dog license had better do so at once. Otherwise the town do so at once. Otherwise the town police have received orders to destroy all dogs.

Licenses are good until April 31, 1936. Dog owners please take notice.
